

Australian Government
Department of Education

First Nations EDUCATION POLICY

RESOURCE KIT

Hello

The Australian Government committed to developing a new First Nations Education Policy as part of the 2024-25 Budget, the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 and the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 – Full and Fair Funding (BFSA).

The Australian Department of Education is developing the Policy in partnership with key First Nations education stakeholders, state and territory governments, and the non-government sector to improve First Nations learners' education outcomes and experiences.

The development of the Policy is guided by the principle of shared decision-making, with First Nations voices at the heart of every stage.

Submissions are now open for the First Nations Education Policy consultation. The department wants to hear from First Nations people about what should be included in the Policy, helping to shape the future of First Nations education in Australia.

We want to hear from you and to connect with parents, guardians, kinship carers, students, or those with an interest in education. All feedback to contribute to the improvement of First Nations education experiences and outcomes is appreciated.

Thank you for your support.

How you can help

Please share the resources in this stakeholder kit with your audiences.

Individual resources can be shared on your channels to raise awareness about the consultation. Feel free to use a resource that will resonate best with your audience – we've included digital, print and audio files.

We appreciate any support and assistance you can provide by sharing information about the First Nations Education Policy consultation.

POSTER

This poster can be used on your social media channels or downloaded and printed to be shared with people in your community.

 Australian Government
Department of Education

First Nations
EDUCATION POLICY

WE WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU!

Your perspective matters – we invite you to share your thoughts on the future of First Nations education.

Tell us what you want to see to accelerate improvement of First Nations education outcomes.

Actioning change can only be done in partnership with First Nations people. If you're a parent, guardian, kinships carer, student, or someone with an interest in education, we encourage you to make a submission in the First Nations Education Policy consultation.

 Scan the QR code
with a phone or visit:
www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy

SOCIAL MEDIA

SOCIAL MEDIA COPY

POST 1:

Accelerating improvement of First Nations education outcomes and experiences can only be done in partnership with First Nations people. We want to hear from you – what do you think a new First Nations Education Policy needs to include?

Written, audio and video submissions are now open at www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy.

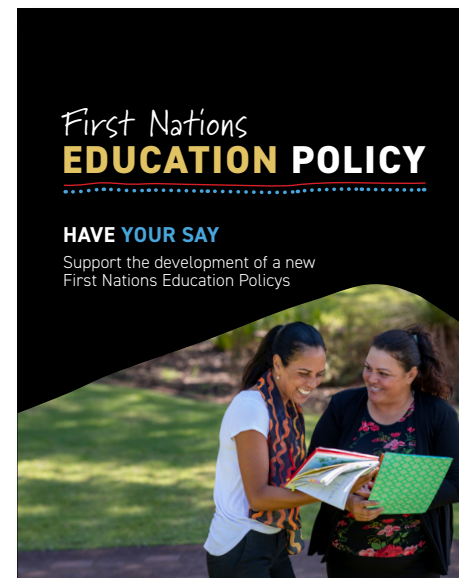

POST 2:

Working in partnership with First Nations people is the only way to improve First Nations education outcomes and experiences in Australia.

The Department of Education is seeking feedback on what you'd like to see included in the new First Nations Education Policy.

Submit your thoughts via www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy

SOCIAL MEDIA TILE

EMAIL

This draft email copy can be used to communicate directly with your audience groups. You can simply copy and paste the text into your email application.

EMAIL COPY

To [recipient]

The Australian Government committed to develop a new First Nations Education Policy as part of the 2024-25 Budget, the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 and the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 – Full and Fair Funding (BFSA).

A new Policy is needed to ensure the contemporary needs and expectations in First Nations education are prioritised so that First Nations learners can thrive, not just participate. Education systems must take action to improve cultural safety, equity, and responsiveness.

The Australian Department of Education is developing the Policy in partnership with key First Nations education stakeholders and state and territory governments to accelerate improvement in First Nations learners' outcomes and experiences.

The development of the Policy is guided by the principle of shared decision-making, with First Nations voices at the heart of every stage.

To shape the future of First Nations education, it's important to hear the experiences and aspirations of First Nations people.

If you're a First Nations parent, caregiver, student, kinship carer or someone involved in First Nations education with an interest in improving education outcomes and experiences – we want to hear from you.

Please visit www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy to make a submission, or to find more information.

We encourage you to share this information with your networks. Questions can be directed to FirstNationsEducationPolicy@education.gov.au.

Regards

NEWSLETTER

We have created text that you may wish to include in your next newsletter to help inform your community about the First Nations Education Policy consultation. You can copy and paste the newsletter text directly from this page to use.

NEWSLETTER COPY

The Australian Government committed to develop a new First Nations Education Policy as part of the 2024-25 Budget, the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 and the Better and Fairer Schools Agreement 2025-34 – Full and Fair Funding (BFSA).

A new Policy is needed to ensure the contemporary needs and expectations in First Nations education are prioritised so that First Nations learners can thrive, not just participate. Education systems must take action to improve cultural safety, equity, and responsiveness.

The Australian Department of Education is developing the Policy in partnership with key First Nations education stakeholders and state and territory governments to accelerate improvement in First Nations learners' outcomes and experiences.

The development of the Policy is guided by the principle of shared decision-making, with First Nations voices at the heart of every stage.

To shape the future of First Nations education, it's important to hear the experiences and aspirations of First Nations people. Submissions are now open to take part in the First Nations Education Policy consultation - www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy.

Feedback can be made through written, audio or video submissions. More information about how to make a submission is available on the department's website.

Australian Government
Department of Education

First Nations EDUCATION POLICY

To find out more about the First Nations Education Policy consultation visit, www.education.gov.au/first-nations-education-policy.

This webpage contains instructions on how to have your say, along with the First Nations Education Policy discussion paper.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact
FirstNationsEducationPolicy@education.gov.au.