I am concerned with the amount of support being given to students doing teaching with low literacy skills at Utas. Having other people correct and edit work before submission is a kind of cheating it does not assess the candidate accurately. Why is there a system at utas that supports this ???